CLEMENCEAU
MAKES REPLY TO GERMANS

Paris, May 15.—Premier Clemenceau replying to the allies to the German note asking readjustment of the labor section of the peace treaty, indicated that article must be accepted as drafted. The official texts of the note and reply were made public today. The German communication, signed by foreign minister Brockdorff-Rantzau said:

"With reference to articles 55 and 56 of the proposals for the establishment of a league of nations submitted by us, we beg herewith, to transmit the draft of an international labor law approved by the German government. The government is of a mind with the allies and associated governments holding that the greatest attention must be given to labor questions. Domestic peace and the achievement of mankind depend vitally on the adjustment of this question. The demands for social justice repeatedly raised in this respect by the working classes of all nations are only partly realized in section 13 of the draft of peace conditions of the allied and associated governments on the organization of labor. These sublime demands have for the most part been realized in Germany with the assistance of the working classes, as is generally acknowledged in an explanatory manner. In order to carry them into execution every where in the interest of mankind the acceptance of the program of the German delegates is necessary."

MOTHER AND FOUR CHILDREN DROWN
WHEN BARGE SINKS

Portsmouth, N. H., May 15.—A mother and her four children and an engineer were drowned when the barge Naticoke, from Perth Amboy, N. J., filled and sank in five minutes in a northeast gale, six miles off the Isles of Shoals, early today.

The dead: Mrs. Wm. W. Gray, of Perth Amboy, wife of Captain Gray of the Naticoke; four children of Captain and Mrs. Gray, ranging in ages from 5 months up to 8 years; and engineer (name unknown) of the Naticoke.

The barge sank while Captain Gray was making frantic efforts to fight his way to the family sleeping quarters under the pilot house. He was driven back by the rising water.

Allan McDougall of Perth Amboy, a deck hand, had launched a small boat. When the barge sank, Captain Gray managed to get to the small boat. He and McDougall drifted until they were sighted by the Rye Beach life saving station.

The life savers put out in a life boat and brought the survivors to the station. Captain Gray was nearly insane with grief over the loss of his family.

LONDON PAYS TRIBUTE TO EDITH CAVELL

London, May 15.—The capital of the British empire mourned today for Edith Cavell, the heroic nurse, murdered by the Germans in Brussels, in 1915.

Her body, exhumed from the place where the Germans buried it, was received with impressive military honors at Victoria station this morning.

After services at Westminster Abbey, the body was taken to her native town, Norwich, for interment.

Crowds blocked the approaches to Victoria station, as the hour approached for the arrival of the special train from Dover, bearing the casket. The throngs were quiet and solemn. An escort of honor of Grenadier Guards was drawn up at the entrance to the station, the men's heads bowed, their rifles reversed.

The coach containing the coffin was draped in purple. As the pallbearers appeared with their honored burden there was a sharp command, a rattle of arms and the troops came to salute.

The casket was plain oak with a brass plate, inscribed:

"Edith Cavell, born Dec. 4, 1865, died Oct. 12, 1915."

It was draped with the Union Jack.

Through a lane of soldiers, standing stiffly at attention, the pallbearers paced slowly to a battle-scarred gun carriage, which once belonged to Company L, the heroes of the battle at Leateau. The coffin was placed on this historic carriage, and 6 black horses drew it slowly through the ranks of the guard into view of thousands massed in the streets. All hats were doffed. There was a rumble of drums and a military band sounded the mournful strains of Chopin's funeral march. Vast, silent crowds lined the route to the Abbey, and thousands of soldiers were drawn up on both sides of the streets, standing with arms reversed, heads bowed.

At Westminster Abbey, as the flag-draped coffin was borne into the lofty nave, amid the tomes of kings, it was received by the clergy, chanting the burial service. Behind the procession of ministers and dignitaries of the church, the coffin was carried up the aisle to the altar, while the voices of the men and boys chanted: "The Lord Is My Shepherd, I Shall Not Want."

ALLIES TURN DOWN
GERMAN PROPOSITION

Paris, May 15.—The German proposal for an international labor conference at Versailles has been turned down by the allies, according to the text of notes made public here today. The allies take the stand that the labor problems referred to by the Germans can be cared for under the League of Nations.

The letter regarding international labor forwarded to Premier Clemenceau by Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau was taken up with proposals of legislation, the most of which were incorporated in the international labor charter issued by the syndicalist conference in Berne last February.

BECOMES BRIDE OF
GROVER CRAWFORD

In the presence of the congregation who had attended prayer service, and other friends who gathered, the marriage ceremony by which Miss Esther Babb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Babb, became the bride of Grover Crawford, took place at the Friends' church, Tuesday evening, at 9 o'clock.

The bridal couple entered the church at the conclusion of the prayer meeting, and for their entrance, the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Marie Jenner. The bride was attired in a tailored suit with taupe hat, and she wore a corsage bouquet of white roses. Miss Helen Dillingham, the bridesmaid, also wore a tailored suit and corsage of roses. Both the bridegroom and his best man, Elton Tindall, who recently returned home, having received their discharge from the army after service overseas, wore military uniforms. Dogwood blossoms, ferns and potted flowers decked the chancel and the auditorium of the church.

The Rev. Mary Herald of Indiana, the bride's aunt, officiated at the ring service, and prayer was offered by the Rev. H. C. Biddlecum, pastor of the church.

Immediately following the service, and after receiving hasty congratulations offered by their friends, the bridal pair entered an automobile and drove away. They expect to go to Cleveland and other points in that vicinity on their honeymoon trip.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will be at home for the present with Mrs. Crawford's parents, on the New Burlington pike. Mrs. Crawford is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Babb, a popular girl, who has been one of the spring's favorite brides.

It is the logical channel through which every kind of goods can be bought and sold. If a Want Ad can't sell what you have, there must be something wrong with it.

Hundreds of people read these ads every day, in fact, the Want Column is more universally read than any other part of the paper. He who is wise will learn to read and use the Classified Ads.

While the negro's body swung from a limb of a tree members of the mob fired a volley of shots—cutting the rope and dropping the body into a fire beneath the tree. Two persons in the mob suffered minor injuries when struck by stray bullets.

The negro's body was burned to a crisp.

WOMEN MAKE PROTEST AGAINST
BLOCKADE OF CENTRAL EMPIRES

Zurich, May 15.—A protest against the blockade of the central empires was moved at the international congress of women which is in session here today.

Frau Glucklich, of Hungary, declared that the blockade was responsible for Bolshevism in her country.

Thirty-two American delegates are present, including Jane Addams, of Chicago, Ida Tarbell and Jeannette Rankin, the former woman member of the American congress.

England is represented by 23 delegates, including Mrs. Philip Snowden, and Mrs. Despard.

Only one woman represents France. There are three representatives from Ireland, 27 from Germany and four from Austria Hungary.

Frau Heyman, of Germany, said that German women protested against the invasion of Belgium and the inhuman deportations of civilians from Belgium and northern France. According to Frau Heyman, German women were not in favor of the Brest Litovsk treaty nor the "soldiers idea of drafting peace."

Young German women, representing 40 German cities joined in the movement for a revolution, said Frau Heyman.

WITH THE AIRMEN TODAY

American dirigible balloon, G-5, reaches St. Johns, New Foundland, at 9:40 a. m. (New York time), completing a flight of 1,065 miles from Montauk Point, L. I., almost the distance from New Foundland to the Azores, without stopping. She may attempt to cross the Atlantic.

American seaplane NC-4, 9:05 (New York time), hoping to reach Trepassey this afternoon and join the NC-1 and NC-3 in the start across the Atlantic tomorrow. Crews of the NC-1 and NC-3 spent the day tuning up their planes at Trepassey.

British aviators at St. Johns decided not to attempt a start across the Atlantic today, because of rain and fog.

SEAPLANE ALIGHTS IN THE OCEAN AND MAKES REPAIRS

Halifax, N. S., May 15.—While flying from Halifax to New Foundland today the seaplane NC-4 alighted on the water, made necessary repairs and again took to the air and continued her flight toward Trepassey Bay.

Aviation experts here regarded this feat as of the highest importance, as it demonstrated the fact that the NC planes during their trans-Atlantic trip will be able, if necessary, to descend, make repairs and resume their voyage without assistance.

Various unconfirmed reports were circulated here early today that the NC-4 had returned to this harbor. The place where the plane alighted on the water is about 30 miles from Halifax. The plane after having made a start from this port was seen to circle downward. She was up again and well on her way to New Foundland at 12:47.

RUSSIANS WILLING TO

It is learned from Vienna that as a result of a meeting of allied representatives with Minister Renner on Sunday, the Austrians probably will accept the entente's viewpoint on Austria's position as an independent state, if economic support is given.

The big problem that confronts the allies right now is Fiume. French circles understand that it has been definitely decided that the maximum Italy can hope for is a free port at Fiume, similar to the status of Dantzic.

PITTSBURGH STREET

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 15.—Street car service in the greater Pittsburgh district was completely tied up today by a walkout of approximately 3,000 union motormen and conductors. TAFT TELLS G. O. P.
WHAT IT MUST DO
TO WIN NEXT ELECTION

Indianapolis, Ind., May 15.—That the Republican party will be restored to national powers at the next election—if the republican congress ratifies the league of nations—was the prediction of former President Taft in an address here last night. The G. O. P. success, he said, depends largely upon whether the party does not make too many mistakes between now and the election.

Among the pitfalls are disposition of the railroad control and tariff questions, Taft asserted. The railroads should be controlled by the government, but they should be given a fair chance and just treatment under private ownership, if they are returned to this status. In settling the railroad question, the republicans "must adhere to the right principles," the former president declared.

DYNAMITE ON RAILS
WRECKS TROLLEY CAR

Lawrence, Mass., May 15.—Dynamite placed on the rails near the Glen Forest station on the Bay State street railway exploded early today and wrecked a trolley car as it passed over it.

Motorman Fred Greenwood was severely injured when a piece of steel rail was forced through the floor of the vestibule by the explosion.

The police believe that the persons who planted the dynamite on the tracks acted under the belief that the car carried Lowell policemen who were returning home after a banquet here.

The explosion was similar to one which occurred on the Haverhill line of the Massachusetts eastern railway about ten days ago.

GET IT AT DONGES.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas On Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding food that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas by the use of a little Bismarck Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bismarck Magnesia. It is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder of a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess of acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meals digest naturally and healthily without need of pepsin, pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bismarck Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the Bismarck form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

PUT OUT A GARDEN

Last year garden truck of a total value of $525,000,000 was produced in the United States. While that establishes a record, it is one that easily can be broken this year, with a very small degree of effort. Last year there were 5,000,000 garden plots in the United States; another million could be added to that number in 1919, without strain.

There is quite as much reason for growing truck this year as last; in fact the same reason exists now as then. Vegetables of every kind are still high. The coming of peace has not lowered the price, nor is it likely to do so for many months. The thrifty individual who finds a vacant lot and obtains permission to establish a summer garden there will profit immensely from his foresight. He will be surprised at the end of the year how many dollars he has saved. If you have an opportunity to put out a garden, don't let it pass. Gardening is one way that everyone can help tremendously to cut down the high cost of living—Dayton Herald.

Consequently attend the Fulton Sale of lots, Saturday, and buy and plant a lot.

REGIONAL CONFERENCE OF THE RED CROSS OPENS SESSION IN XENIA

With about fifty delegates from counties in southern Ohio present, the two days' Regional Conference on Home Service, held under the direction of the Lake Division of the Red Cross opened at the opera house Thursday forenoon.

Groups arrived from Cincinnati, Dayton, Springfield and several adjacent towns for the conference, while there were one or two representatives from each of the following counties: Adams, Butler, Clark, Clinton, Franklin, Greene, Hamilton, Highland, Mercer, Montgomery, Pike, Preble and Warren. Mrs. Eva B. Sage, field director for southern Ohio, of the Lake Division is in charge of the conference and Miss Virginia Wing assistant in the educational department of the Lake Division, presided at the opening session.

Attorney W. L. Miller, who is chairman of Home Service and Civilian Relief for Greene county, welcomed the delegates, and spoke briefly regarding the Red Cross home service which has been performed locally, mentioning in this connection the aid which has been extended by Miss Anna Johnson, the local visiting nurse, and Mrs. L. R. Robertson, of the Social Service League.

Difficulty which the Cincinnati branch is experiencing in placing discharged soldiers and sailors in positions, because of the actions of some of the men themselves, was emphasized by J. K. Brenton, director of the Cincinnati Home Service.

Mr. Brenton says that employers in his city are beginning to call him up and ask him not to send them any more soldiers and sailors, because they have been repeatedly disappointed by men out of the service. Frequently these men failed to show up when jobs had been procured for them, again they worked a few hours, or a few days and then gave up their jobs, or they showed a decided tendency not to work. Mr. Brenton said that he has besought employers not to be influenced by the actions of a few of the discharged men, but the fact that they have been disappointed several times has tended to sour them against employing ex-soldiers and sailors.

"We have little trouble with overseas men. They are usually glad to get back into civil life, and willing to work at anything that will make a living for them until they are able to find something more desirable. But it is usually the man who has lain around camp in this country long enough to become lazy, who is making the trouble for us," said Mr. Brenton.

Mr. Brenton said that vocational training men eligible to vocational training and who are allowed $65 a month during training, have in many cases sought to impose upon Red Cross

Chapters in different cities by seeking to obtain allowance from more than one chapter. He said that an effort is being made to do away with the business of discharged men in uniform soliciting orders for books and other articles.

Edward Bicknell, a Home Service visitor in Dayton, who is himself a discharged soldier, said that the Dayton chapter has had much the same experience as that Mr. Brenton related for Cincinnati.

The unemployment problem, due to the closing of munition factories has been a serious one in Dayton, but Mr. Bicknell says that it has been possible to obtain a job for every man who was willing to work. The flood prevention work in Dayton has gone a long way toward helping out the unemployment problem there, and the Dayton chapter has always been able to find a job for the conservancy for any man, said Mr. Bicknell. The objection of some men to doing common labor, and their desire to obtain jobs as good as those they held prior to the war, has caused the chief trouble, Mr. Bicknell said.

Lawrence Cole, Cleveland, field supervisor for eastern Ohio, talked on County Home Service Organization, explaining methods for strengthening branches in rural counties, interesting local people, and getting persons familiar with the community interested in the work.

The general public is extended a very cordial invitation to attend the Thursday evening meeting, as well as all the sessions of the conference.

Speakers Thursday evening will be Dr. C. L. Miner of Springfield, a physician who is well known in this city, and Rev. J. H. Hornung of Cleveland. Dr. Miner's subject will be "The Future of Red Cross Home Service." Dr. Miner is chairman of the Clark County Home Service. Mr. Hornung will speak on "Camp Work in Chillicothe." He thoroughly understands this work, in which he has been engaged, and is a very entertaining speaker.

Among the other speakers for the Thursday and Friday's sessions are R. J. Bondy, of Columbus, who before entering the service was social service superintendent of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, and Miss Caroline Benham, who has been in charge of Home Service work in Chillicothe.

Mrs. Harrison Ewing, division director of Junior Red Cross work, takes charge of the meeting at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Thursday evening's meeting will open at 7 o'clock, in order that it will not conflict with the Devastated France Concert at the First United Presbyterian church. The morning session begins at 10 o'clock and the afternoon session at 2 o'clock.

FAREWELL TO BEER.

A parting is a sad thing, it oft brings forth a tear, and such a one is brewing now, with the passing on of beer. For many years its held, its sway, a damp spot in the dry, its only fit that on this day, each head should bow and cry. Its helped inspire the muse of song, its path has e'er been gay, but now there's naught, but Bevo to drive dull care away. In each preceding spring now, we've shouted, "swat the fly," but history will repeat how, we've rapped the old bar fly. No more the bar room habitue, no more the cry, "Here's How, alcohol's fore'er taboo, there's naught but water now. And each movement has its way, carrying all before, and still the prohibition bray, becomes a gruesome bore.

THE FUTURE OF XENIA SEMINARY

(By Dr. Jesse Johnson.)

The questions that have been raised regarding the future of the Xenia Seminary received careful attention at the recent meeting of its Board of Managers.

At a conference held in Dayton, Ohio, in January, a committee was appointed to prepare an address to the Managers. For this committee, Professor John E. Bradford of Miami University, made report in a carefully prepared study of the whole field of theological education in our country, to "see whether there is any place that evidences enlarged opportunities for Kingdom service." The trend of the address is toward the conclusion that if Xenia Seminary is not to continue its work in Xenia, it should be transferred to the region between the Mississippi and the Rockies, a region having an area of 1,165,000 square miles, a population of over 18,000,000, with 21 theological seminaries all told, only three of which are of the Presbyterian and Reformed churches. One of these three, moreover, is specially intended for German Presbyterian students. "This area is one of great wealth and increasing importance. Moreover, it is the home of one-eighth of the membership of the United Presbyterian church, and is furnishing us one-third of our students of theology."

The address does not pronounce in favor of the removal of the Seminary, but seeks only to make a contribution to a fair, broad-minded study of the problem.

The address was referred to a special committee of the managers. Rev. James P. Cowan, D. D., of Indianapolis, was the chairman of this committee and brought its report to the Board. The report first recognizes handsomely the time and labor expended in the preparation of the address, and also the excellence of it as a comprehensive study of all that bears upon the question, and continues as follows:

First:—It is the judgment of your committee that the United Presbyterian church is in favor of maintaining two theological seminaries, at least.

Second:—Under the conditions of unrest in the church, including our own denomination, and in the world, with uncertainty and doubt confronting us whichever way we look, may it not be wisdom to take heed to the admonition, "In your patience possess ye your souls?" It is true that the agitation of the union of the two seminaries and likewise the change of the location of Xenia Seminary, is not a new effort in the United Presbyterian church; but this agitation has raised the question in the minds of many, whether or not we have been looking at the things that are seen instead of the things that are unseen or going in the way of the material instead of the spiritual.

Third:—We must meet conditions as we find them. There is a sentiment in the five synods which control Xenia Seminary that a change in location would bring a stronger support in students and money from the synods. Your committee is of the opinion that a commission representing the five synods would, after a thorough investigation of the various cities as to the sentiment of the people, be able to satisfy this sentiment by deciding whether or not the Seminary should remain in Xenia indefinitely.

Fourth:—We recognize the readjustments necessary to meet the changing conditions from the days of the Service Seminary down to the present time.

Your committee would therefore recommend:

I. That this Board of Managers appoint a commission consisting of one minister and one layman from each of the five synods.

II. This commission shall prepare and submit to the five synods at their 1919 meetings a definite program for the larger service of Xenia Seminary.

III. The main points of this program to be submitted shall be:

a. The location of the Seminary.
b. The provision of an adequate plant and endowment.

Of this commission, President Joseph Kyle was made chairman.

JAMESTOWN

On Monday afternoon a large concourse of friends and relatives assembled at the home of Mr. J. W. Sholey for the services of Mrs. Sholey, who passed away so suddenly on Friday evening. The Rev. W. A. Cooper, her pastor, conducted the service. For the Scripture lesson he read the 23rd Psalm and the 15th chapter of First Corinthians, basing his remarks on the 26th verse—"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." He read the two hymns, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Does God Care." Beautiful flowers surrounded and covered the soft, grey casket. The pallbearers were: Dr. F. W. Ogan, Wilmoth Bryan, R. D. Bryan, Andrew Bryan, Foster Fitzpatrick, William Bullock. The closing service at the grave was "Rock of Ages," read by Mr. Cooper. Interment in the Jamestown cemetery.

Dr. A. L. Teeters, the dentist, has moved his family to Jamestown into the Irwin property, on the corner of Main and Maple ave.

About 20 members of the Jamestown Eastern Star were guests Tuesday evening of the Aldora Chapter of Xenia, at a banquet following the inspection of the chapter.

Mr. Charles Sharp was a mid-week visitor in Dayton.

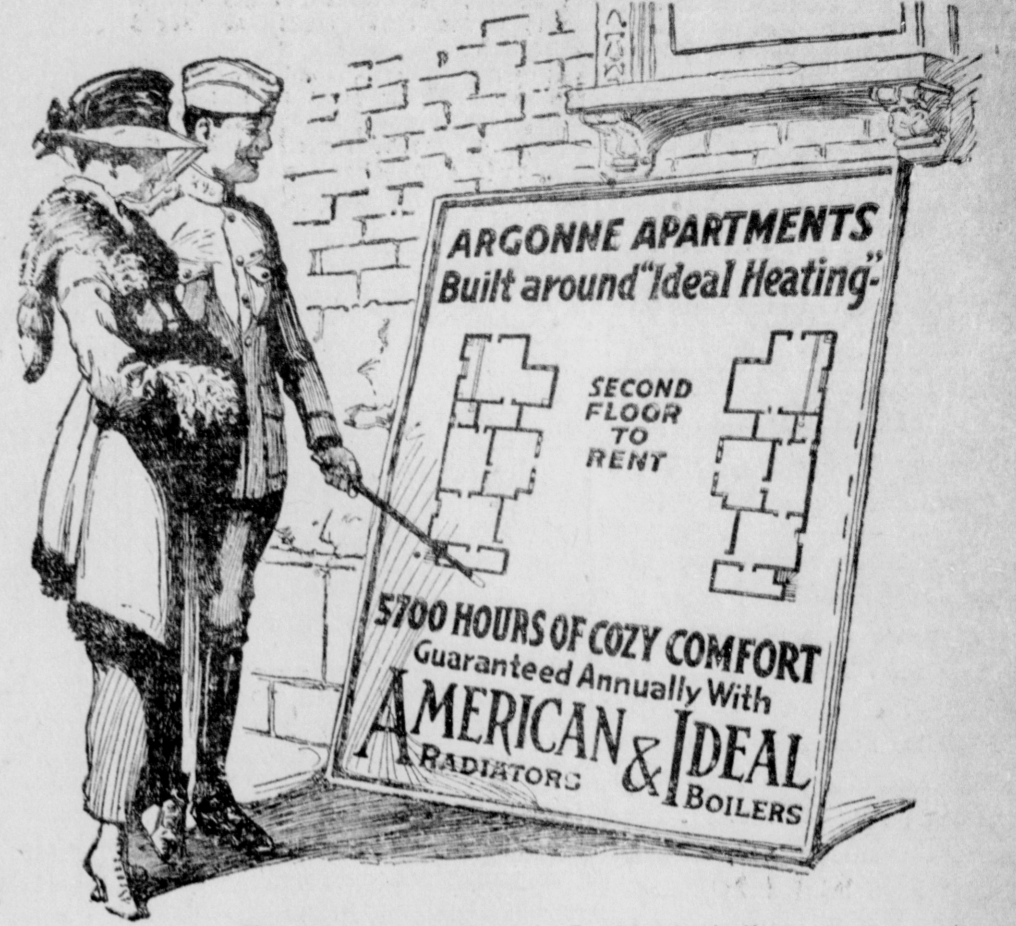

Mrs. A. L. Nichols of Grove City, was here to attend the funeral of her late neighbor and friend, Mrs. J. W. Sholey.

Mrs. David Blakely was in Xenia on Tuesday, visiting her son, John, at the McClellan hospital, where Dr. McClellan performed an operation on him Monday for abscess of the liver; a very serious operation, but he rallied nicely, and his many friends hope for him a speedy recovery.

The Association of Bible Schools of Silvercreek-Ross townships met in the annual convention at the M. E. church in Jamestown on Sunday evening. The county president, Herbert Davis, of Xenia, presided. A splendid program was rendered, although the time was limited for the speakers. Neither the Rev. J. W. Cooper or Mr. J. A. Cargill could finish their addresses,

Tires American Efficiency Ended the War

Working with precision, certainty, and relentless energy, American business men, turned warriors, gave a demonstration of efficiency never to be forgotten.

They learned their efficiency in American corporations—learned to make sure they were right, then go "full speed ahead." For that is the spirit of American business—that, for instance, is how corporations buy their tires.

Take the Iten Biscuit Co., in Omaha, for example. Out of a thousand Diamond Tires used in 1918, 995 made marks between 7,200 and 18,000 miles.

There's an example of American efficiency for you—efficiency in the production of big mileage tires at a reasonable price, and efficiency in knowing how to buy big money's worth.

GREATEST FIVE YEARS IN ALL THE AGES.

All thought of separating the league-of-nations covenant from the treaty of peace with Germany virtually has been abandoned by the Republican leaders in the Senate. They have been advised by experts in international law that they would have no legal right to attempt thus to amend the treaty, and, furthermore, they have been authoritatively told they cannot write new provisions into the treaty.

The Senate leaders suddenly are awakening to the fact that there are just three courses open to them. They are: First—To ratify the treaty as presented. Second—To reject the treaty in entirety. Third—To ratify the treaty, with certain reservations expressed in a resolution.

This third course is the one most likely to be decided upon by the opponents of the league, who fear the European entanglements they say it would force upon the United States. The ratification of the treaty with reservations would leave it optional with the other participating nations to accept or reject these reservations. The treaty would be binding only upon those nations which accepted the Senate reservations. In other words, Germany might sign the treaty of Versailles, and then, if the Senate ratified it with reservations, Germany could refuse to accept the reservations and thus not be bound by the treaty with respect to the United States.

The discovery has been made that the United States Supreme Court has held that a treaty must contain the whole contract between the parties and that the Senate has no right to introduce new terms into a treaty.

Wonderful, beyond the power to even comprehend them, have been the world events of the past five years. And in it all how almost incomprehensible is the fact that the great German Empire, the arrogant menace of world peace, has been crushed and dismembered, and that a new light of Liberty is stalking forth, torch in hand, cheering humanity to a better day.

Is it not worth while to have been living in these great days, and witnessed these stupendous events—and, yes, to have been a partner in them? Who can feel otherwise than that God raised up our young, vigorous nation to be a foremost factor in these great events?

If the Paris Peace Conference shall be able to accomplish what it is aiming to do, will it not be the climax of human brotherhood—the greatest achievement in the cause of humanity since the world began? Who will dare try to discourage so noble a cause? Instead, should not we all give it God-speed by favoring it?

The Senate of the United States should ratify the treaty without a dissenting vote—should do it promptly, gladly and proudly.

A writer who had just given this great Treaty a careful, very thoughtful and serious reading, arose to write this encomium of it:

"Ineffaceable impressions of admiration were excited as visions created by that immortal document thronged before the inward eye, like panels of a glorious panorama; like the battalions of a vast procession. All history seemed to be passing in review across the mighty stage upon which the drama was unfolded. Slowly and irresistibly the feeling grew upon the mind that humanity was awakening from a long stupor, or rather a debauch of lust and, like the prodigal son in the pigsty, to be 'coming to itself.'"

"For countless centuries it had followed the devices of its own heart; had wandered in far countries; had given itself up to the sway of its passions, when, in its last debauch, impoverished, sick at heart and conscience-smitten, it had perceived its folly and its sin and said to itself: 'I will arise and go to my father.'"

"In that amazing document there lies the indisputable evidence that the human race has achieved a new self-consciousness. In every passage it flames a new and deeper sense of moral obligation. One dominant thought runs through its every demand of 'the conquered' Germans—the thought of justice. For the first time in its history the human race, as a race, has given a solemn, united and unhesitating testimony to its conviction that righteousness must be the universal law of life and that the sway of the golden rule must be eternal.

"Some have complained that the document did not give its testimony to the being and the power of God, but no man can be blind to the belief of its authors in truth, in duty, in equity, in moral obligation to some power that makes for righteousness. No theologian who ever lived—not Calvin, Luther, Augustus nor Paul; no prophet, not Isaiah nor Moses, could have written a document more replete with the idea of duty—that 'stern daughter of the voice of God.' As plainly as if it were printed in the boldest type and the simplest language those solemn sentences express the central idea of the Holy Bible. 'Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter. Fear God and keep His commandments, for this is the whole duty of man.'"

FREDERICK REFUSES TO CONSIDER A BUSINESS PROPOSITION

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

I had not asked Neil where he had spent the evening the night he came in so unlike himself from the effects of what he had been drinking. I thought I would wait until he was entirely himself, and in good humor. I was terribly afraid he had been at Blanche Orton's. Someway when he was out now I invariably accused him in my mind of being with her. Occasionally he would drop something which showed me I was mistaken, but most of the time he was very close-mouthed as to where he spent his time; even more so than usual since his aunt came.

Neil knew she would disapprove of his actions. He had known that father and mother had worried over our extravagance, and they really were far less worldly than his aunt in many ways. She accepted the extravagance of our mode of living with one question. That a nephew of hers could be dishonest she never would have believed. And she would have been shocked to know he visited another woman without me, and would have argued with him had she known it.

"I do hope we shall have Neil all to ourselves," I remarked to aunt as we drove down town. "So often he has people like you's lunch with him."

"We mustn't be selfish dear Bab. A big business man like Neil often has to do many things on account of that business."

"I guess I know that!" I answered rather pettishly. "I have had to learn that lesson perfectly. I shall be so glad when he feels he has made enough so he won't have to work so hard, and can take more time at home with me. Why he hardly sees Robert now-a-days. Just a few minutes in the morning, and occasionally on Sunday. The boy will scarcely fee acquainted with him as he grows up unless Neil manages to give him more of his time." I had not meant to complain of Neil in any way; but when I started to talk of his absence from home I invariably said more than I intended.

"A man has to judge what is best for him to do in his business," aunt replied in a reproving manner, then changed the subject by asking about the different buildings we passed, etc.

Neil was waiting for us, and to my surprise so was Mr. Frederick. I was so surprised and pleased to see him that I greeted him very cordially. I noticed aunt looked her surprise. I flushed as I recalled that I had said I hoped there would be no one with Neil; then flushed still more as I saw her look at me.

"My aunt, Mrs. Carter, Mr. Frederick. He has consented to lunch with us," Neil said in his usual off hand manner. Then went right on talking to Mr. Frederick as we trailed after them into the dining room.

"The company is to be incorporated for five million," he said in eager tones. "It will be the biggest thing of its kind going. We are sure of several big wells, and that sells the remainder of the prospect you know."

"But Forbes, you haven't answered my question yet," Mr. Frederick interrupted. "Who are associated with you in this deal?"

Just then the head waiter saw us and led us to a table. For a few moments the talk was general, as Neil ordered the luncheon. Aunt asked Mr. Frederick some questions. Evidently my pleasure at seeing him had aroused some sort of suspicion in her mind. But he answered them all so frankly, so he blunty himself that she soon "thawed out" as Neil would have said, and was chatting pleasantly with him.

The luncheon ordered. Neil at once turned to Mr. Frederick and began to talk of the wonderful profits he expected to make from this big oil deal which he was promoting.

"You haven't answered my question Forbes, who are the men associated with you? I never touch a thing unless I know who's running it."

"If the men are on the square fair honest fellows, the deal is apt to be on the square also. But if crooks are behind it, I wouldn't give the snap of my finger for any proposition you can lay before me."

"Well Scott is one of them—" had noticed that Neil flushed as Frederick talked, flushed and looked a bit embarrassed.

"Scott's all right, but who are the others?"

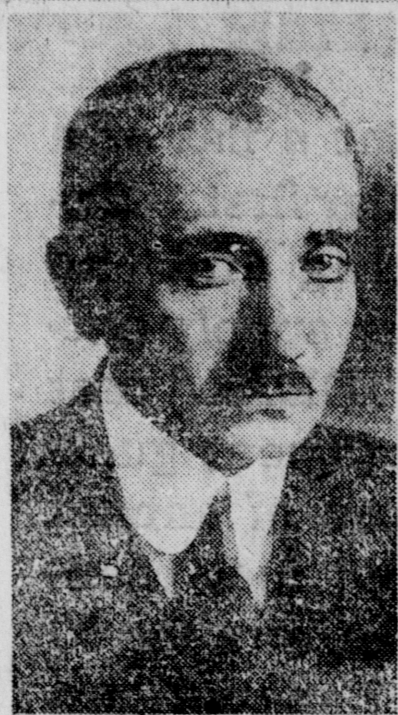

"Connor and Tearle—and myself—"

The waiter just then brought on luncheon. As he laid the plates, I heard Frederick say:

"You'll have to count me out Forbes. I won't go into anything with those fellows."

Tomorrow Neil's Aunt Becomes Inquisitive.

SCHOOLS SELL THREE MILLIONS IN STAMPS

Wonderful Record Made by War Savings Stamp Sales Force.

Columbus, O. (Special).— Ohio school children are setting a good example for their elders in finishing up war work. They didn't stop when the armistice was signed. According to reports submitted to the educational division, Ohio War Savings Committee, Ohio school children have sold War Savings Stamps to the amount of $2,855,151.60 since Jan. 1. This is an average sale of $2.95 for every pupil enrolled.

This record is considered very good at War Savings Stamps headquarters, but it was pointed out that if the schools were to reach their yearly quota of $20 per pupil, every school in the state must remain active during the summer.

Further stimulation in the sale of War Savings Stamps in the schools has been secured through the $8,000 prize contest, in which extremely valuable awards are to be made to the 25 leading juvenile salesmen in the state. In addition 50 Hun helmets captured by American doughboys are to be awarded the 50 boys and girls who sell the most War Savings Stamps during the month of May. Sales in both contests must be reported through the Vacation Thrift Committees. Thousands of such committees already have been formed, but it is necessary for every school in the state to be so organized. Teachers and principals who have not superintended the formation of Vacation Thrift Committees are asked by the War Savings Committee, educational department, to do so at once and report to state headquarters here. It is not necessary for the teachers and principals to become chairmen of the committees, but the responsibility for their formation is up to them.

Hours of Work and for Play.

The hours of relaxation must come; they are absolutely necessary for all of us, but a very definite line should be drawn between the hours of work and the hours of play if one expects to make any kind of success. It is a pity to have to be curt in order to make this line apparent to one's friends and family, but this line must be made plain, even if radical measures are necessary, and the sooner the business woman learns this the better will be her work and the calmer her nerves.—Exchange.

Ancient Medium of Exchange.

Among some ancient tribes oxen and sheep served as a medium of exchange, ten sheep being reckoned equivalent to one ox. The Latin word for money is pecunia, and it is derived from the pecus (cattle), showing that pecunia (money) meant property in cattle.

Discolored Ceilings.

It is frequently found that the ceilings immediately above incandescent mantles become blackened. If white-washed, it can be cleaned by being rubbed over with a mixture of starch and water of the consistency of cream. A soft flannel cloth should be used. When dry gently rub off the starch. The black stain will come with it.

Coffee Drinking has been entirely abandoned by tens of thousands who now drink

Rome, Bay 13.—The Italian press reflecting public opinion, declares Italy's diplomatic defeat in Paris, is growing. Dispatches from the peace conference depict the situation as "ominous," owing to "Wilson's attitude."

The Bernese correspondent of the active in Vienna and hints that the Idea Nazionale declares the allies are active in Vienna and hints that the price of Austria abandoning the project of a union with Germany will be the tyrol, which will be given back to her instead of being awarded to Italy.

The Giornale D'Italia classifies the report of a French protectorate over Ethiopia as "incredible."

Goat Cheese Popular.

The people of Norway have for many years shown a success of the goat as a milk producer and money maker. One of the Norwegian farmers' principal pursuits is goat cheese making, and the popularity of this table delicacy is evidenced by the fact that Americans have been trying hard to "copy" it, with little success.—Exchange.

THEATERS

BIJOU.

Lively Douglas Fairbanks returns to the Bijou theater Friday and Saturday matinee and night, in his latest Artcraft release, "Arizona," a dashing, military story of a cavalry troop. As a snappy young officer, Douglas Fairbanks is exceptionally good, rivaling his work as a mounted policeman. His cast is excellent, consisting of Theodore Roberts, Kate Price, Frederick Burtos, Harry Northup, Frank Campeau, Kathleen Kirkham, Marjorie Daw, Marguerite de la Motte, Raymond Hutton, Robert Boulder and Albert McQuarrie.

ORPHIUM.

Mary MacLaren, the young star of many Universal pictures, will be seen as a featured Triangle player at the Orphium Friday night in her latest photoplay, "Secret Marriage." The story is the work of Richard Bennett and he has provided a plot which forms an admirable setting for the sweet girlish personality of Miss MacLaren. The story shields a sensational thrill that will add to the interest of the picture. Supporting Miss MacLaren are Fred Vroom, Edward Alexander, Harold Johnson and Vernon Mersereau.

How Pleasure Comes.

Executions Went On.

Some years ago the executioners of Canton struck against striking off any more heads unless they were paid an extra shilling for each head removed. The prisoners in the condemned cells were anxious that the strike should continue until the crack of doom, but the authorities climbed down and the executions went on as merrily as before.

"BON JOUR, LES AMERICAINS!"
CRY THE FRENCH WAR ORPHANS

"BON JOUR, les Americains!"
"We are smiling at you from France."

These are three war orphans—sons of poilus who made the great sacrifice.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has purchased a beautiful estate at Charvieu, near Lyons, France, with an adjoining piece of land of 300 acres to give boys like these a home. Already seventy boys of all ages are living there.

This orphanage was established by the church with the approval and cooperation of the French government which was unable to care for the thousands of kiddies pouring into southern France.

Very shortly the capacity will be increased to two hundred and fifty, through the funds of the Centenary movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church and other boys will have a chance to live a healthy normal home life.

This is one of the projects to which part of the $25,000,000 war reconstruction fund being raised by the Missionary Centenary will be devoted. At least $5,000,000 will be spent this year in war reconstruction work in America and Europe.

A relief ship carrying $2,000,000 worth of material will be dispatched within a short time in charge of Bishop W. F. Anderson of Cincinnati and Bishop Theodore Henderson of Detroit, and others.

As part of its war reconstruction program the Methodist Church will establish churches, dispensaries and public rooms for rest and entertainment in many cities in France and Italy, and will carry on a program of reconstruction work which has been wholly approved by the French government. The campaign for this work will be carried on the week of May 18-25.

METHODIST CENTENARY
CELEBRATION AT COLUMBUS
JUNE 20 TO JULY 13

The greatest celebration ever held in connection with religious work throughout the world will be the Methodist Centenary celebration at Columbus, June 20 to July 13. The state fair grounds are to be utilized. Natives from many countries will be present, and native and Christian conditions will be graphically shown in displays. Tens of thousands of visitors from all over the world are expected.

MR. TAFT

(New York Times)

Mr. William Howard Taft has done a great deal of useful service to his country in office and out of it. In particular, since the war began, he has shown a broad, generous patriotism with very little consideration of partisanship. His work for the league of nations is another evidence of his superiority to the ideas and tactics of the mere partisan. With his countrymen in general he has always been popular. It used to be said that the south would love to vote for him, if he only bore the proper party label. In the north, despite the unfattering verdict of 1912, he has long been respected by all parties. Since his reconciliation with Mr. Roosevelt he may have been forgiven by the Progressives except those enthusiasts or irreconcilables whom Mr. Roosevelt loved to call "the lunatic fringe."

It would be a great good fortune for the country, indeed, for the Democratic party itself, which should be kept up to high standards, if Mr. Taft, with his moderation, his solid judgment, his unselfish patriotism, his ample and varied experience of affairs and men, were to be the Republican candidate in 1920. Yet even if there is such a general Republican desire for his nomination as our Badger contemporary sees or fancies, what chance of nomination will he have? Even if 1912 were wholly forgiven and forgotten, 1918 and 1919 could not be. Mr. Taft has not regarded blind, instinctive opposition to Mr. Wilson as a first duty of Republican statesmen. He has dared to advocate the league of nations. He is even said to have spoken impatiently of certain Republican senators habituated to regard Mr. Wilson as the source and fount of all evil. Mr. Taft has many engaging qualities, of which a steady magnanimity is not the least, but he is taboo to many, and not the least powerful, Republican politicians. To strive to provide the machinery and means of maintaining the peace of the world seemed to him more necessary, more momentous, than feeding fat the Republican grudge against Mr. Wilson.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED
BY XENIA SEMINARY
BOARD OF MANAGERS

That we record the loss to the Seminary in the removal by death June 30th, 1918, of Mrs. David MacDill, widow of the late Professor David MacDill, D. D., LL. D. Mrs. MacDill was a devoted friend of the Seminary, and as long as strength permitted was very active in the work of the Ladies' Visiting and Advisory Committee.

Also in the great loss by the calling to his reward of Mr. James Carson of Springfield, who for many years was a loyal friend, wise counselor and liberal supporter of the Seminary. For many years Mr. Carson served on the Board of Trustees, and was faithful in attending its meetings and in supporting the Seminary by his interest in its work, and by contributions from time to time. He was called away September 18th, 1918.

To the Board of Managers of the Xenia Theological Seminary:

The Ministerial Association of Xenia send greetings to this your one hundredth and twenty-fifth commencement and in the name of the people whom we represent, express our appreciation of what your institution has meant in the past and is still doing for this community. The very presence of such a school, with its high standards of scholarship, with its deeply spiritual and cultured gentlemen, with its firm faith in the Word of God and the doctrines of His Grace, cannot be overestimated. It has left its impress upon this locality, and we trust it may continue, with His blessing, to benefit succeeding generations as it has the past and the present. It is with regret that we hear there are efforts to relocate this school of the prophets. Such an action, we know would be a great loss to the community, which bears in a peculiar way the marks of the thought and the life of the Xenia Theological Seminary.

Sincerely,

Xenia Ministerial Association,
Melvin E. Beck, Secretary.

That we hereby express our sincere appreciation of the communications received from the Xenia Ministerial Association, in which they voice their appreciation of the Seminary and its past history, the work it is doing in the present, and their hope that the location of the institution will not be changed. We believe that evidence of the appreciation of the Seminary and of the willingness to support it and enlarge its sphere of work and influence by the Christian forces of Xenia, may mean much to this School of the Prophets in the years to come, in the Providence of God the location of the school remains unchanged.

That this resolution be communicated to the Xenia Ministerial Association by Dr. Johnson, secretary of the Board.

That a hearty vote of thanks be extended to those who have so kindly entertained the non-resident members of the Board and friends of the Seminary during this meeting.

Respectfully submitted,
S. R. Jamieson,
J. B. Pollock,
E. G. McKibbin.

RUSSIAN BOLSHEVIKI SEEKING
COMMERCIAL ALLIANCE WITH U. S.

By FRANK J. TAYLOR.

Berlin, April 19.—(By Mail).—The Russian Bolsheviks are planning to seek a commercial alliance with the United States, which would also include Germany and Scandinavia, according to M. Makowski, secret agent of the Lenin government in Berlin.

Should the league of nations fail—as the Bolsheviks believe it will—Makowski expressed the belief that such a commercial pact might grow into a military and political alliance.

The Bolsheviks, according to Makowski, employ Premier Lenin's phrase in describing the league of nations as a "league of capitalists."

President Wilson and his ideal of the league are heartily supported by Lenin and the other Bolshevik leaders, but they think both Wilson and his plan have fallen victims to capital, with which the Bolsheviks will make no compromise.

Makowski, who is better known by his pen name, "C. P. Kasackoff," has been in Berlin several weeks.

He is one of Lenin's favorite pupils and worked all through the Russian revolution as one of the present premier's lieutenants. Now he is entrusted with what the Russians consider the most important foreign post, Berlin. Makowski says his mission is not so secret as it would appear. He says the German foreign office is looking at him from behind a hand, which it will pull down at the proper time.

"They will soon hunt me up and say with surprise, 'Oh, there you are,' he said.

"How fortunate you are here. We did not know you were so close at hand." Then we will get down to business and resume relations, and the red flag will again float over the Russian embassy building on Unter Den Linden."

According to Makowski the Germans already have made some bungling attempts to establish relations with Lenin. The most notable one was when they sent a merchant to Moscow, he said.

Lenine agreed to make concessions and put this German up in a fine house and fed him extremely well. The German finally became a Bolshevik himself and had to be called back because of the wild messages he sent to Berlin by wireless.

Makowski says the Bourgeoisie must be kept out of the government until the new system is established and until every one becomes one of the proletariat by reason of working. Hence, the discrimination, according to Makowski, is only temporary.

The communion which the Bolsheviks are establishing in Russia is working out according to expectations, it is maintained by Makowski. He claims the peasants are producing more and workmen have increased their output with fewer hours of labor.

PESKY BED BUGS

A MILLION BEDBUGS. Just think, a 35c package of the new golden chemical P. D. Q. (Pesty Devils' Quicker), is enough to make a quart and enough to kill a million bedbugs, no matter how large they may be, where they came from, their age, color or sex, and at the same time leaves a coating on their eggs and prevents hatching.
CUT THIS OUT. This new chemical can be had at any first-class drug store. A 35c package makes a quart of P. D. Q., and will go farther than a barrel of old-fashioned bug killer. Don't let anybody impose upon your intelligence by offering you something else. Insist on what you ask for, then you'll have what doctors prescribe.
KILLS FLEAS ON DOGS. It's fun to see the fleas drop off your pet dogs.
KILLS CHICKEN LICE. No use for your chickens to have lice. A 35c package makes a gallon of chicken lice killer. Your drug store has it, or can get it for you.

THE SACRIFICE

BY
MINNIE REID FRENCH

"I saw the traces of tears on her cheeks."

ESIDE the mountain road, and standing a little apart in a grove of pines, stood the old abandoned church, its roof falling in, its windows and doors wide open to wind and sun; and all about it brooded a strange whispering, as if there were secrets to be told if one could only understand.

Thinking it deserved, that charming day upon which I happened to visit it, I was somewhat startled upon entering the door to find a worshipper there, an old woman, who sat on the steps of the altar. Her head was bowed on her hands, and as she lifted her face I saw traces of tears on her withered cheeks. I was turning away when she spoke:

"Come in, ma'am," she said. "Don't mind me."

"I am afraid I am disturbing you," I apologized; "but I wished so much to come in! I have been wondering what the people were like who used to worship here. I suppose you know all about them."

"Yes," she answered, "I reckon I do." Then she added: "Some says it's haunted."

"Won't you tell me about it?" I begged. "The very pines out there seem to be trying to whisper something to me about the place."

"Do they seem that way to you?" wondering. "That is what Medie, my daughter, used to say about 'em, that they was always whisperin' somethin' to her."

"I wish you could 'a' seen Medie," she continued presently. "She wasn't so tall, but she had a way of standin' straight that made her seem taller. Her hair was soft an' brown an' wavy about her face, an' her eyes was brown, too. Her cheeks made you think of wild roses."

"I can see her," I said gently. "You have made her very real."

"Everbody said she was the prettiest around here," she continued, "an' before she was sixteen she had plenty of beaux that tried to come courtin' but she didn't care for none of 'em. The only thing Medie seemed to care about was her fiddle. You see, ma'am," with quaint apology, "I always felt kind of ashamed about her playin', for everbody seems to think a girl oughtn't do such things. Now if she'd been a boy, it would 'a' been natural. When she was little I tried to hide her daddy's fiddle from her, but she'd find it in spite of me; an' you don't know how quare it made me feel to hear her pickin' out the pieces Dan used to play an' him in his grave."

"I never thought she'd ever care for anything but her fiddle; but after a while love come to her, just like it comes to ever woman, I reckon. He was one of these mastery kind of men, was David Marr, the one she loved, an' good lookin' just as good lookin' as he could be, an' he had a way with him that just drew a woman's heart right to him. He first saw Medie at a dance one night an' heard her playin' the fiddle. He couldn't keep his eyes off her, for she looked awful purty, an' her cheeks was powerful pink. She played like she didn't know nobody was there, an' still evertime she lifted her eyes, she looked straight at him. He asked to take her home that night after it was over, an' they walked together right into Heaven, ma'am; leastways it seemed that way to 'em then."

"David Marr was a wild sort of feller, reckless, an' full of dare-devil ways, an' everbody was always talkin' about him one way or another. Time an' ag'in, he'd done all kinds of reckless things, an' while this made Medie bothered about him, still she loved him all the better. There was a meetin' goin' on in this old church an' several had been converted. David Marr was full of devilment, an' made his brags that he would break up the meetin' one night, sayin' he was goin' to ride his horse right through the door. An' sure enough he done it, an' right through that door he rode. I'll never forgit how he looked. Some people screamed, an' some laughed, an' everbody jumped up; but the preacher made 'em set down, an' he stood there an' looked at David just as still an' just as earnest. Then he shut his eyes, an' began to pray, an' I never heard such prayin' before. Standin' right here, he prayed that the Lord would smite David Marr's heart with conviction, an' He did. Before the prayer was finished, David was comin' down the aisle, his face streamin' with tears, an' he knelt here, an' give his heart to God."

"Well, after that, all you could hear was about David Marr bein' converted, an' I felt awful glad. Medie looked so happy over it, an' I felt better satisfied than I had since he'd asked me for her. But one day he come to see her, an' it seemed like he had somethin' on his mind. I was sewin' by the window in the house, an' they was just outside, settin' by the door."

"Medie, the Lord has called me to preach," was what he said to her, "an' I've come to ask you to do somethin' for me."

"Oh, David, I'm awful glad!" she says, claspin' her hands; an' from the way she looked up at him, I saw she'd do anything he asked her to do.

"You know," says he, an' his eyes looked so tender, "when we marry you'll be a preacher's wife, Medie. Folks think a woman like that ought to be a example to the rest. You'll have to be changed, an' not dance any more, an' try to be sober minded."

"I'll do my best, David," says she, twistin' one of her long curls round an' round her finger.

"An' you must promise me never to play the fiddle ag'in."

Her face turned as white as a sheet.

"My fiddle?" she said, almost whisperin'. "Give up my fiddle, David?"

"Yes," he says, searchin' her face, his eyes like blue steel, "you must give it up. It's an instrument of the devil, Medie, an' leads men an' women astray. God knows, rather than have a wife who would be a hindrance to me, I'd give you up, an' never lay eyes on you ag'in."

"She set so still, an' her eyes was wide open, with a quare look in 'em. My heart almost stopped beatin' while I waited for her to say yes or no."

"Oh, David!" she says, kinder chokin'. Do you mean you would go away from me an' never come back if I played the fiddle?"

"God helpin' me," says he, "I'd never see your face ag'in. But I reckon I'd always love you, Medie."

"She dropped her face on her hands an' cried, then David put his arms around her, an' when she looked up at him I could see that if he asked her, she'd give up ever'thing on earth."

"Well," she drew a deep sigh, "it was no use for me to say anything. When a woman loves a man, you know how it is. That day after he left, she come in the house, an' took her fiddle an' went out. There was a place down in the orchard, by the edge of the creek, under an old apple tree, where she loved to set an' play, an' sorter dream; an' I knowed she'd gone down there. Purty soon I heard her playin', an' it was the saddest tune I ever heard. It made me think of the strangest things, of all the farewells I'd ever heard about, an' I knowed she was tellin' her fiddle good-bye. She was gone a long time, an' when she come back, she didn't have the fiddle with her, an' I didn't ask no questions."

"They was soon married, an' seemed as happy as could be. Then David took a notion to go off an' study to be a preacher; so he went, an' Medie stayed at home with me. She was always busy doin' somethin', an' when spring come, what must she do but try to help me put in the crop. I begged her not to do it, but she'd say to me:

unless they have gone through it, too."

Again she paused, and silence wove its spell between us.

"For years I didn't hear from 'em," she went on. But somehow, ma'am, I was always lookin' for my girl to come back an' be like she used to be. I never could get over thinkin' she'd come back some time an' show me where she put her fiddle. Well, one day, years an' years afterwards, I was standin' in my door, just at sunset, an' looked up an' saw her comin' through the gate. She always had a free little way of tossin' her head, an' that was the way she done when she swung 'round through the gate. She come straight up the path to the door, swingin' her hat in her hand, with the sun shinin' on her brown hair. She held out her hands to me, laughin' an' cryin' at the same time, an' I just took her in my arms, but I was shakin' from head to foot."

"Wasn't it strange? Of course, it wasn't my girl, but it was her child, come back to me after the long years. We set down an' talked about her mother, an' she cried when I told her about the fiddle, an' there was a light on her face just as if she could understand better than anybody. She told me she had studied the 'violin,' she called it, away across the seas, an' she'd come back now, to play for the people in her own land."

"But, mother," says she, "I must have my fiddle!"

"Then she said that ever since she was a little girl, she had dreamed of an old church in the woods, time an' ag'in, but she never told anybody. Then one night she dreamed of findin' a fiddle there, just like the one she wanted. She told her father about it, an' then he told her about her mother, an' about me, an' he let her come back here, alone. I come with her to this old church, an' like somebody in a dream she walked straight up here to this pulpit, an' right here," she laid her hand on the altar, "under here, we found Medie's fiddle. She knelt down an' took it in her hands an' laid her face against it, an' when she played, it sounded like a bird that had been in prison so long, an' had been set free. So you see, ma'am," she rose stiffly to her feet, and looked down at me with dark, unfathomable eyes, "I still have my girl with me. Ever year she comes back an' stays with me a whole month, an' we set together while she plays all the pieces that big crowds go so far to hear; an' she makes up all kinds of little tunes that nobody understands but just us two. I have a lot to be happy about, an' still," she paused a moment, "sometimes I have to come here, an' think it all over."

FIELD GLASSES LOANED GOVERNMENT ARE BEING RETURNED

During the war, the government issued a call for field glasses, bird glasses and any other glasses which might be used by the soldiers in keeping watch on the enemy. Thousands of patriotic citizens responded to the call of the government and loaned all the field glasses which they had—many of which were very valuable.

The government is now returning these glasses, much to the gratification of the owners, who gave them without regard as to whether or not they would get them back.

J. M. Walker of this city, loaned a very valuable pair of field glasses several months ago. They belonged to his father, the late L. J. Walker, and were highly prized as a keepsake. The same glasses have been returned in good shape and have "done their bit" in the World War.—Wilmington News.

King James Bible.

The most remarkable event of the reign of King James I, who was characterized by the Duc du Sully as "The wisest fool in Europe," was the appointment of a commission to revise the English translation of the Bible, which was completed in 1611. In 1604 this commission was appointed by the crown, and consisted of the most profound scholars of that period, who in seven years completed the so-called King James version.

Sudden Cold Kills Fishes.

It has been proved that sudden cold sometimes causes the death of thousands of fish in the shallow waters of the tropics and subtropics. Many species are so chilled as to become helpless, and either killed directly by drowning or are washed ashore in a comatose state. The phenomenon is known locally as "freezing," although the temperature of the water may be several degrees above the freezing point.

Course Not.

STECHER WINS WRESTLING TITLE FROM ZBYSZKO.

Joe Stecher

Joe Stecher, of Nebraska, defeated Wladek Zbyszko, of Poland, in a wrestling match, billed for the championship of the world, at Louisville, Ky., in one hour, forty-five minutes and fifteen seconds. Stecher downed the mighty son of Poland with his famous body scissors hold, coupled with bar arm hold. Zbyszko recently claimed the world's title by virtue of his two recent defeats of Ed. ("Stranger") Lewis. His defeat by Stecher leaves the latter the logical opponent for Earl Caddock, who is with the American forces in France.

HAVE STOOD TEST OF TIME

Quotations With Which All Are Familiar Acquire Popularity Only Because of Their Merits.

The quotation worthy of the high title of "familiar" must have stood the test of time and passed unscathed through the shifting tides and fashions of centuries. In its lofty or in its humble way it must show that, like Shakespeare, it "was not for an age, but for all time." I used the word "humble" because the rhymes of childhood, of the nursery, fulfill the requirement of age in a quotation worthy to be called familiar. Their intrinsic, their abstract merits may appear slight, they may even seem to be sheer nonsense, but they are passed on by mothers and nurses and by the children themselves from generation to generation. We may be assured that they would not thus have lived and prospered if they had not possessed some quality, however slender, of genuine worth, of real humor or imagination, which gave them permanence.

Then there are the popular sayings, the folk tales and ballads and the songs of the people with an ancestry lost in the mists of antiquity, which, stored in human memory and kept alive only by human lips, have come down across the centuries with their endless variants until at last they have been gathered up by the collector and the antiquarian and made safe from oblivion by print and paper. These tales and ballads are often rude in form and expression, but no curious inquiry is needed to explain their long life and lasting familiarity. In them you find wit and wisdom, sparks struck from the hard flints of experience by men and women struggling unknown through what we call life.—Henry Cabot Lodge in Republic.

FORTUNATE IS HOMELY MAN

If Unduly Attractive, the Unhappy Male Seems Doomed to Misfortune All His Life.

I have no objection whatsoever to children being beautiful, or to young girls being beautiful, or to a woman of whatever age being beautiful. But I do insist that for a man not to be homely is his misfortune. Irvin S. Cobb writes in American Magazine. The handsome male starts with a handicap at the very cradle. Women of all ages insist on cooing over him and talking baby talk to him and chucking him under the chin and kissing him—especially kissing him—and since he is not of an age to appreciate these attentions the whole procedure must annoy him fearfully. Should his beauty last into his boyhood the chances are that he has the sort of mother who will make him wear his hair long and force him to go about publicly in a broad lace collar and a black velvet suit with a sash about his waist, and that means other boys will call him by offensively apt nicknames and generally make his young life a burden to him.

Most woeful of it all, if still his beauty sticks to him after he has arrived at man's estate, only a determined and persistent struggle against the odds of destiny and of circumstances can save him from drifting into the ranks of the matinee idols, the moving picture stars and the floorwalkers in the department stores.

About Islands.

As a rule islands belong to the mainland near which they are located. Guahutlo belongs to Mexico; that is the one off the coast of Mexico; Andros, to the United States; Margarita, did belong to Germany, and the peace conference will settle its administration. Fiji belongs to England. The Marshall and Caroline Islands also belonged to Germany. Marcus island belongs to Japan. Fanning island belongs to England.

RESUMES PRACTICE IN CITY OF XENIA

Dr. William T. Darnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Darnell, Wilmington, who formerly practiced medicine in Xenia and who was connected with the Washington Hospital, filling the office of Treasurer, has returned to resume his practice of medicine and surgery.

Dr. Darnell enlisted in the army two years ago and was sent to Camp Funston, where he became a Lieutenant in the Medical Corps. Later he was sent to France where he received a commission as Captain. He will now return to the Washington Hospital in Xenia, where he will be associated with Dr. H. R. Hawkins, in the practice of medicine.—Wilmington News.

Italy's Votive Candles.

In Italy the distinctively votive candle is made by hand. The material is pure beeswax, which is kneaded and tempered and mixed with a secret ingredient to retard combustion. Special Egyptian cotton is used for the wicks. The cotton, too, is treated with chemicals to keep it from feeding too fast.

Daily Thought.

The first farmer was the first man, and all historic nobility rests on possession and use of land.—Emerson.

ADVISES ORDINARY BUTTERMILK FOR WRINKLES AND ENLARGED PORES

This Good Looking Young Woman Advises Old Time Recipe of Buttermilk Cream in a New Way—A Gentle Massage With Fingers Before Retiring At That Is Necessary.

The old time application of Buttermilk and Cream to whiten and preserve the skin and remove harsh little wrinkles and ugly sallowness is grandmother's recipe and women throughout the country are again using it to ensure a beautiful complexion and snow-white hands and arms.

Buttermilk, however, is not always obtainable, but a specialist has at last perfected a method of concentrating buttermilk and combining it with a perfect cream, which you can buy in small quantities ready to use at any first class drug store by simply asking for "Howard's" Buttermilk Cream.

No matter whether you are troubled with wrinkles, hard little lines around the mouth and eyes, coarse, sallowness and redness, caused by wind and sun, you will find that all these trials quickly disappear with the use of this old-fashioned beauty recipe brought up to date. Be sure you get Howard's Buttermilk Cream at Sayre & Hemphill's.

Beautiful actresses say, "A short massage with Howard's Buttermilk Cream at night before retiring is all that is necessary."

Everyday Etiquette

"A friend is visiting me and I am invited to a party while she is here. Is it proper for me to ask the one who invited me to send my friend an invitation, also?" asked Marjorie.

"Perfectly proper with the understanding that you are not to be offended if she replies that she has already invited as many as she can provide for," said her older sister.

ACCORDING TO HOYLE ITS VALUE IS WONDERFUL

Nerv-Worth Banished Rheumatism That An Attack of the "Flu" Had Made Worse

In making the following enthusiastic statement, Mr. Hoyle carried out his desire to permit publication to do all the good it could for fellow sufferers. He expressly says so:

"I had been troubled for several years with rheumatism and after a severe attack of the 'flu' it became worse. In addition I was nervous, irritable and generally run down. I couldn't sleep well and was out of fix all around. Life was miserable. I tried Nerv-Worth and after just one bottle I feel like a different man. My rheumatism no longer bothers me. I sleep well and eat heartily and am fast returning to my former vigorousness. I WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT NERV-WORTH IN MY HOME. It has done me marvelous good. I want others to know it. It has real merit."

MOTHER OF FORMER CZAR AND DAUGHTER IN LONDON

Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia and her daughter, Grand Duchess Xenia, have arrived in England aboard a British warship according to a report from London. They were met upon their arrival by King George and Queen Mary and Queen Mother Alexandra.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILE IS RECOVERED

A Ford touring car belonging to J. A. Fifer of this city, and stolen from Bryan park, at Yellow Springs, where it was parked by Paul Owens, while he attended a dance there, Wednesday night, was recovered Thursday morning, where it had been abandoned near Massies' creek, on the Stevenson road.

The machine was in good condition, although two tires which were carried on the rear and the two license tags had been removed. The machine ran short of gasoline and oil, and evidently stalled on the hill near Massies creek bridge, causing the thieves to abandon it.

According to Mr. Owens, the machine must have been stolen between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock, Wednesday night. The loss was reported to the local police at once, and Thursday morning a man passing the abandoned machine reported it to headquarters.

Mr. Fifer immediately drove to the scene and identified the machine as the stolen car. The thieves have not been apprehended.

Would Do Better Next Time.

While in the act of playing coalman Robert dumped some building blocks out of his sister's doll buggy. His sister being asleep at the time, I told him to make less noise, as he might wake her up. His answer was: "I'll get soft coal next time, daddy, and she won't wake up."

City of Light.

The city of London's one square mile is probably the most brilliantly illuminated square mile in the world. Its lamps have a total of 2,270,000 candle power, which yields an average illumination of nearly one candle power for every two square yards of the area of the city.

SERGEANT ELBERT BABB IS HOME

Sergeant Elbert L. Babb, 308th Ammunition Train, 32nd Division, arrived home Wednesday night from Columbus, where he went after being discharged at Camp Sherman. He was greeted at the Pennsylvania depot by a number of relatives and friends, including members of the store force of the Babb hardware store, who tendered him a royal welcome.

Sergeant Babb was in France ten months, during which time he saw active service, and he wears the black braid which shows that he was going through an officers' school at the time of the signing of the armistice.

George Herros, formerly of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, who was drafted from St. Marys, Ohio, was also in the 308th Train, and he arrived in this city, Wednesday afternoon.

LITTLE CHILD DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Little Emma Mae Dailey, infant daughter of W. J. and Emma Dailey of Cedarville, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, in Dayton, at 4 o'clock, on Thursday morning.

The child was in perfect health until Monday morning, when it became ill and the attending physician pronounced the illness spinal trouble. She was immediately taken to St. Elizabeth's, but gradually grew worse. She was two months and two days old.

The body was brought to the Nagley undertaking establishment Thursday, and will be taken to Cedarville Friday, where burial will be made.

The time of the service has not yet been announced.

WOMEN BACKING THE SOLDIER BOYS.

When the history of the war has been written, the work done by the women at home will impress itself upon this nation as few even now realize. Literally, millions of women left their homes and took up war activities into which women had never before been called, and many more at home devoted long hours at work in knitting and preparing surgical dressings for the boys "over there." Some may have worked at the expense of health and are now suffering from headaches, backache, dragging-down pains or some derangement. It should be remembered that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for more than forty years has been restoring such women to health and strength, and is now recognized as a standard remedy.

INFANT PRODIGY IS OUT ON BAIL

Boston, May 15.—William James Sidis, once the so-called infant prodigy of Harvard University, was at liberty today on $5,000 pending an appeal of a sentence of a year and a half in prison on charges growing out of the May day riots here.

Sidiss, who carried a red flag in the parade, was sentenced with eleven others who took part in the demonstrations. All appealed.

MOST INTERESTING INSECT IN WORLD IS DUE THIS SUMMER

(By Frank Chambliss of Antioch.)

The most interesting insect in the world will be seen this spring and summer in great numbers throughout large areas of the United States.

The insect referred to is the periodical cicada, which spends either 17 or 13 years lacking a few weeks, in very slow but sure, development underground. Then millions of them attain maturity almost at the same moment and come up out of the ground pushing a round turban of earth away from over their heads, and breathing the fresh air once for 17 years. They let nature know of their existence by their strenuous noises, they also plant their death stings in the small grooves of the trees. The females crawl up in the young trees and make a small groove in the delicate twigs and then they lay their eggs.

Much damage is done to young orchards and nurseries. Yellow Springs seems to be a center of attraction for the insects, as there were many thousands of them on and around the college campus in 1902.

The saying of a former student referring to the cicada on the college campus 17 years ago, that the cicadas were so numerous that one could take a bucket and with a stick just scrape them off the trees as one capturing a swarm of bees.

The cicada may be seen the last of May or the first of June; and they live but a few weeks. But in this short time they can destroy many million dollars worth of trees and fruit.

Another locust, brood 18, comes out this year with the 17 year locust, but in smaller numbers. It sometimes happens that a late spring freeze over the various areas which contain the pest, destroys the greater part of the locusts before the time arrives for depositing eggs, and other causes frequently tend to diminish the possible devastation.

Therefore, the planting of young orchards this spring should be discouraged until fall, when the danger of the great cicada swarm will be past, and the young trees should not be pruned this winter or spring.

You may destroy them by hand-picking the insects from young trees, just as the laying period starts in progress.

DR. WOOLSEY ENJOYS PLEASANT VISIT IN NEW YORK WITH MOVIE STAR

Friends for more than a year through correspondence, and through the Xenia woman's admiration of the clever little actress' screen work, Dr. Ida C. Woolsey and Miss Alice Brady, movie star, became real heart to heart friends and face to face friends when they met in New York during a visit which the physician paid the metropolis, and from which she returned home a few days ago.

Dr. Woolsey not only met Alice Brady, but at the earnest solicitation of the actress, she prolonged her stay in the city for a few days in order that they might meet again, and the day before she left on her return trip there was delivered at her hotel a box of exquisite flowers with the actress' card, and with a message from Miss Brady wishing her a pleasant journey.

The friendship between Dr. Woolsey and Miss Brady began when Dr. Woolsey, who has always been greatly interested in theatricals and in the movies, wrote to the little star. She told her of her personal interest in Miss Brady, whose work she had always admired for many reasons, and particularly for its high moral tone.

She was somewhat surprised when the missive was answered without delay, and she learned that the actress would welcome letters from Dr. Woolsey giving her honest opinion of her work and criticism of plays she witnessed. This correspondence continued until Dr. Woolsey's visit to New York, and in the meantime a stronger personal interest than that of the admiration of a "movie fan" for a screen star grew up between them.

During Dr. Woolsey's visit to New York she wished to meet Miss Brady who is playing the little role in the play "Forever After" at her father's theater. The Playhouse, as well as working in the movies.

She wanted to see her favorite on the stage as well as the screen and it was while she stood for a short time in the foyer of the theater before entering the playhouse that she had her opportunity of seeing the actress. Miss Brady drove up in her limousine and started to enter the theater, when Dr. Woolsey stepped forward, offered her hand and introduced herself. As soon as she heard her name Miss Brady gave Dr. Woolsey a most cordial welcome, took her to her dressing room, and enjoyed a chat with her before the time came for her to prepare for her part. She secured for her a more desirable seat than the one Dr. Woolsey had been able to procure at the seat was for Miss Brady's friend and invited her again to her dressing room after the play. In the little room after the play, the doctor and the actress chatted like old friends.

There were one or two other meetings before Dr. Woolsey left New York the following Monday, and extremely pleasant ones for both the doctor and the movie star. For an hour and a half they chatted together of the theatre, of the movies and of many things in general. Miss Brady sought to have Dr. Woolsey's opinion that she favored her stage work to her screen work.

"I did not know that I did favor her on the stage," said Dr. Woolsey, until I saw her next on the screen, and found myself listening for her voice."

Miss Brady has a most attractive personality. Her eyes are large and dark like velvet, her hair dark brown with gold tints. She is very young and her youth has in it an appealing quality that adds to her charm, says Dr. Woolsey.

Miss Brady works hard, and Dr. Woolsey found that she takes virtually no time for recreation. Appearing afternoon and night on the stage, her mornings are devoted to her work in the movies, and 9 o'clock finds her in the Select pictures studios over in Jersey.

Coming home with a renewed interest in her screen favorite, Dr. Woolsey will continue her letters, which she learned were always received with eagerness by the actress, and answered by her personally, instead of by her secretary.

The House Boat

By SADIE ESTELLE BALCOM

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union)

He was thinking of Theda Way as he walked along the shore of the great spreading river, and as he recalled the change a month had made in her. Albion Merton was truly sorrowful. All the brightness of her nature seemed to have languished when her old father died. He had been confirmed invalid, a great care to her, but the loving devotion she exerted through five years in his behalf had obscured all other interests. Then when the reaction came it seemed though all the props of life were suddenly removed, and Theda collapsed like an overburdened being worn out and weary to the limit.

With the death of Mr. Wayne the expired pension which, with what Theda could sell of their small garden produce, had kept their heads just above water. They did not own the little place where they lived. They could not hope to continue the life and make a living, so she sold off a few poor sticks of furniture left, and went to an old maid relative who lived a mile down the river road, Leclaire Noyes.

Miss Noyes was over 50, fragile and poor, had a small income from a trust investment, could scarcely afford to spare a room or a meal, but she voluntarily proffered shelter to her half niece.

"We'll manage some way, dear," she said. "It's crowded in these three little rooms I occupy, but we'll try to get along. You mustn't worry beyond that for the present, child. You are so near a breakdown that it's a question if even nursing and rest will help you, but we'll try. For one good month you mustn't lift your finger, not even think."

Theda smiled listlessly and declared she would be all right in a day or two, but before the end of the first week in her new home she was in bed and likely to stay there for some time to come. The village doctor shook his head solemnly, and left some medicine and the greswome decision.

"Change of scene and climate, Miss Noyes, is all that will do Theda any good."

The gentle hearted spinster told Albion Merton of this with tears in her eyes. Albion was an independent fisherman and pearl gatherer along the Iowa shore of the great Father of Waters, owned a shack, some boats and a river equipment, and for a year had once a week come around to see Theda and her father. Mr. Wayne had been a great reader. Albion had an ambition for a better education, and the old man and his books became a great help to him. Theda's admiration, friendship and finally love for Theda had become a new allegiance. He was a clean-minded, modest young fellow, gave no outward evidence of his affection for Theda, but when Mr. Wayne died was a great comfort to Theda, for he took many of the cares of the occasion from her tired shoulders.

Miss Noyes had told Albion of the doctor's report, and later as he went down the river shore Albion's clear face betrayed a deep anxiety. It seemed as though he must stand helplessly by and see Theda fade away, day by day. Like himself poverty bound her to an environment from which she could not escape. As to Albion even the meager living he was assured could not be risked through an experimental change. "No thoroughfare" the future seemed to read. Albion was immersed in despondent thoughts when a cry aroused him.

Three hundred yards distant an ordinary house boat was moored. On its deck a man of middle age, getting about with a crutch, was struggling to free himself from the grasp of a rough looking fellow whom Albion at once recognized as one of the numerous river thieves of the district.

The latter swung a heavy iron bar and dealt the cripple a terrific blow, and as his victim sank to the deck senseless, stooped over him to rifle his pockets. A shout from Albion caused him to hasten away with his booty. Then when Albion reached the stricken man all he thought of was his resuscitation.

It took two days nursing to bring Wade Burnham, as the cripple was named, back to normal condition. All the time Albion was his patient, helpful nurse. The grateful man on his way to a little truck farm he had traded for on the river below New Orleans, acquired a great liking for Albion. He asked him to join him and he would share his holdings with him.

It came about that Albion spoke of the offer to Miss Noyes. Then one day he could not resist telling Theda of his great love for her. From that moment a new joy came into her life. They were married and then began a honeymoon on the floating home, ending up at the pretty cottage that stood in the center of the Burnham farm. "Oh, what a paradise!" murmured Theda, as she stood upon the veranda of the beautiful home surrounded by flowers, and sunshine, and sweet singing birds, and their Eden life began, never to pall or weary in that rare spot where beauty, and peace, and plenty were assured.

The average life of a locomotive is about fifteen years.

AUSTRALIA TO OFFER EIGHT SHIP CONTRACTS TO U. S.

Washington, May 15.—Official dispatches today disclosed that Australian contracts for at least eight cargo steamers will be offered in this country at an early date. Others will follow upon completion by several groups of Australians, if financial arrangements which will permit the expenditures required in ship-building.

Data reveals today that France and Italy will both be heavy contractors for shipping, according to present plans. The Scandinavian countries, particularly Norway, are prepared to go into the shipping business more extensively than ever. This construction naturally will fall on the American yards, officials believed.

The amount of tonnage which can be turned out for foreign account by American yards will be increased or decreased by congressional action, officials said.

Upon determination of a government policy relative to building and operation of the American merchant fleet will depend whether American yards can accommodate all orders for bottoms offered them, it was explained.

Regardless of whether the American fleet is government controlled or operated privately, officials believed that none of the ship yards had future cause to worry. They will be occupied in either event—if not by orders from the shipping board, then by foreign contracts.

It was expected that some keels, for ships owned by foreigners, would be laid by July 1. Only time for settlement of details and the transportation of material will elapse before this nation's ship building plants will be going full speed again, according to shipping board officials.

GERMAN PRESS IS BEHIND SCHEIDEMANN

Berlin, May 15.—The speech of Premier Philip Scheidemann in the national assembly in which he declared that the peace terms are unacceptable to Germany, has been approved almost unanimously by the German press.

As a result of the bitter language used by the premier feeling is growing stronger against the Americans and precautionary measures have been taken by the police about the Adlon hotel, where the American mission is quartered, as well as about the headquarters of the other allied missions to prevent trouble.

Compensation for All Evil.

No evil is without its compensation. The less money, the less trouble. The less favor, the less envy. Even in those cases which put us out of our wits, it is not the loss itself, but the estimate of the loss that troubles us. — Seneca.

La-may Face Powder Does Not Contain Any Rice Powder

Now you can use a pure face powder that is guaranteed not to injure the most delicate baby skin. It will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. And, it really stays on better than any other face powder. It does not contain white lead or starch or rice powder (Poudre de Riz) to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. The specialist who makes this improved powder uses a medicinal ingredient that doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. Because it is pure and because it stays on so well this

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

DOUGHBOY SEES THE SIGHTS IN THAT GAY PAREE

By cracky, this here gosh-darned town of Paris must be come high-falutin' berg. Not as how I've ever been there, but if they all were as lucky as this here young feller, 'B'gosh it'd taken more'n the fifth Liberty Loan to bring them soldiers back. They wouldn't have come. Gee, that must be a gosh-all-hemlock town. Here's the letter I got from a ole buddy of mine who used to work over on Jed Simkins' place:

Dere Buddy:
You probably think you put one over on me by beting me home to get unmobilized, but wate tell you here what I seen yesterday and you'll realize the shoes on the other hand. Stockings has been getting thinner and expensiver in France and now they threaten to disappear all together. It's the naked truth.

I went out to see the ponies run at this here Long Champs yesterday, but I got inflieted with eye trouble, and so help me I don't know whether my skate even run or not. I'll tell you what happened and see if you'd blame yourself.

Just as I was getting settled along comes a platune of the swellest chickens I ever seen and after I got a slant at the way they was dressed or undressed, you might say, all bets was off.

They was as bald as old Sargent Hicks from the knees down. There skirts only come to their knees and they had high heled slippers with a sort of open work, putty effect about half way to there skirts, but between there skirts and there slippers you might say there was no man's land for fair.

Some Frenchy slipped me the info they was dressmakers mannykins. I don't care what they was, they was some bokko kids.

I'm scared I'm going to have a relapse and probably won't be able to sail as soon as I expected. You know these sharpnel wounds is ferce.

DAYTON PEERLESS TEAM TO MEET RESERVES SUNDAY

The coming of the Dayton Peerless who will battle with the Reserves at the Cincinnati avenue lot next Sunday is an announcement that is pleasing to fans.

This will not be the debut of the Gem City lads for they are an old organization and have staged many an exciting fracas on the local lot in past performances with the Reserves. Their record for this season is good and shows that they are living up to the standard set by their work in former years.

The game next Sunday should be a popular one as the fans were cheated out of a game last Sunday by the inclement weather. Baseball is showing quite as big an increase in popularity here as it is in the country generally and the season's outcome looks very rosy to the Reserve management. The old national pastime has never been as popular as now and following the general slump of the during the war period, the old game is again on the ascendancy. With the two weeks lay-off, both players and fans should have plenty of pep for the coming battle.

DO YOU KNOW HOW YOUR HAT IS MADE?

"How Stetson Hats Are Made," is the subject of a two reel educational and instructive industrial film that will appear as an added feature of the program of the Bijou Theater at both Wednesday and Thursday performances.

The picture is being brought here through the agency of the Criterion clothing store, local Stetson agency and is interesting in that it gives the layman an insight into the manufacture of hats, an industry uncommon to this section and one that very few of us are familiar with. The construction of the famous top-pieces are shown from the raw material to the finished product and provides an interesting half-hour of educational entertainment for the theater goer.

MORE LAKE FISH COME TO XENIA

The city of Xenia profited by a visit of the Bay State Fishing Company to this city, A. G. Betz, the manager of a truck of fish which came here giving five thousand pounds to the city, Tuesday afternoon.

The Bay State representative came into this city with a truck load of frozen ocean fish and his visit was on such short notice that he did not have time to advertise his presence. He sold fish from the truck on South Detroit street until late in the evening, when he turned the entire amount of fish left over to the city, and they were put in storage at the Shawnee Refrigeration Company's plant. The fish will be used on the table at the work house.

The Bay State Company is advertising ocean fish with a view of opening a store here and sold the fish at exceedingly low prices.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit. The kidneys are the most over-worked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism. Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble go after the cause at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules, imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not, your money will be refunded. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

HUN SOCIALISTS HOOT PRESIDENT WILSON AND U. S.

Berlin, May 15—Fifteen thousand majority socialists made a demonstration in front of the hotel Adlon, today, crying "down with Wilson. Down with the Americans."

The tumult grew in front of the American headquarters until fifty soldiers arrived and cleared the streets.

The crowd had gathered for a demonstration against the peace terms in front of the Reichstag. They were addressed by Richard Fischer, who said the confidence of Germans in President Wilson has been shamefully abused and that the government would refuse to sign the treaty.

The demonstrators then surged toward the hotel Adlon, hooting, jeering and shouting "robbers." The tumultuous scene lasted half an hour. Chancellor Scheidemann later addressed a large crowd in front of the Reichstag.

AUSTIN BLACK TO HEAD BOY SCOUT DRIVE IN COUNTY

Austin J. Black, manual training teacher and instructor in athletics at McKinley Junior High School, has been named chairman of the Citizens' Committee for Greene county for the coming Boy Scout Week Drive from June 8 to June 14.

This is the information sent out by James W. Faulkner, of Columbus, well known political writer, who is director of publicity for the drive.

Boy Scout Week was recommended in a proclamation by President Wilson, which was made public in Washington, Sunday, and it will be observed nationally. The purpose of the drive is to strengthen the work of the Boy Scouts in America, and the work will be carried on by citizens' committees appointed in each county. It is for this purpose that Mr. Black was appointed.

President Wilson's recommendation is for the purpose of extending the Boy Scout program to a larger proportion of American boyhood.

STILL AFRAID OF KINGS IN EUROPE

Paris, May 15—Hanging the former kaiser, or otherwise, punishing him, is proving less simple a matter than the majority of the responsibilities commission anticipated.

The majority plan, adopted by the "Big Four," over the objections of the American and Japanese members of the commission, provided that one of the wronged countries should act as prosecutor. Now it is difficult to find any country willing to act in that capacity. Belgium, the obvious choice, has allowed it to be known that she does not want to assume the role.

It is apparent that Belgium remembers she is a kingdom, too, and that it would not be a wise policy to start treating kings as criminals. Her's also is the possibility that Germany may "come back," seeking vengeance.

No other country has yet made known its willingness to be the prosecutor of the former kaiser, though France and Great Britain have been sounded out. Despite the fact that Premier Lloyd-George was practically forced by Lord Northcliffe during the last election to make punishment of the former kaiser one of his campaign planks, the general moderation of the British character might impel the government to go slow, through fear of a reaction of the Britain's natural sporting instinct.

Rather Well Put.

John was downtown with his father, who was buying a pair of shoes. He found a pair that were satisfactory and told the clerk he would take them. John looked at his father and said: "Are you sure your feet feel contented in them, daddy?"

RED BLOODED PEOPLE LIVE THE LONGEST

Red blooded people retain their youth and vigor until late in life because red blood ages slowly.

A child with impure blood seems old, while an old man with pure red ironized blood seems young.

Impure blood clogs the system with waste matters, rapidly ageing body, mind and spirit.

Pure blood is red blood, rich in iron and phosphates with power to rid itself of waste matter and able to carry life-giving oxygen to every cell and nerve. It makes both young and old bright, happy, keen, and interested in life. This is the blood you need, every day of your life, the rich red blood made by pure food, fresh air, restful sleep and "Phosphated Iron from the red blood and nerve builder."

Phosphated Iron enriches your blood and nerves, putting them in shape for work. Improves your color, increases your appetite and gives you strength, vigor and power to enjoy both work and pleasure, makes you feel like doing things once more.

Phosphated Iron is prescribed by leading doctors for all who are worn out, run down, nervous, weak and thin blooded people in all walks of life, they have learned to depend on it for honest results.

Special Notice—To insure physicians and their patients receiving the genuine Phosphated Iron, we have put in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to substitute pills or tablets, insist on the genuine, in capsules only.
